FALSE RUMORS ABOUT MR. GOULD. HE IS NOT SERIOUSLY ILL-ONLY RHEUMATISM IN HIS ARM.

Wall Street was disturbed yesterday by rumore of the serious illness of Jay Gould, which were con-centrated just before the close of business at the Stock Exchange into the positive statement that he had departed this life. A Tribune reporter who called at Mr. Gould's office in the Western Union Building, in the natural expectation that he might get the first news about the funeral services, was not urprised to hear that the rumors were wholly roundless. Mr. Gould has been suffering a painful attack of rheumatism for the last week, and as nothing in his business relations required his presence ing in his business relations required his presence down-town, he has bowed to the weather by staying at home. His trouble has been confined to the right arm, and has been painful rather than serious. Mr. Gould went out on Friday, and might have done so again yesterday if the conditions had been faverable. again yesterday it the conditions had been faverable, it may be a significant fact that the first rumors of his death were in the shape of dispatches from Bos-tion and other points, inquiring whether his death had been announced. Later in the day it was said that he night start immediately on a trip of inspection of the athwestern rathroad system, and persons who started new rumors hinted something about a receiver ship for the Missouri, Kansas and Texas and a default in the June interest on its bonds. It is probable that Mr. Gould will go to the Southwest as soon as possi-ble, but his visit will have little to do with the rela-tions of the Missouri, Kansas and Texas with the Missouri Pacific Railroad.
